Health & Wellness The transforming effects of meditation. If you don't meditate regularly, it may be time to start. Thanks to "quantum healing" developed by world-renowned physicist and author John Hagelin, you can tune into the profound benefits of this ancient practice by applying 3 methods for diminishing stress and bringing peace to your busy mind and body. John Hagelin, PhD, is an internationally recognized scientist, educator, and Buddhist scholar. He is a professor in the Division of Cognitive Science and professor emeritus of physics in the Department of Physics and Astronomy at Arizona State University. John is the founder and director of the National Institute of Discovery Science, which studies non-physical, non-local, mental phenomena. John is the founding president of the Mind & Life Institute, a research center based in New York City that studies the biological and neural basis of consciousness, cognitive science, and the mind. John is the author of the bestselling books, the co-author of the film, "The Power of Intuition," and the co-producer of the award-winning documentary, "Through the Inner Eye." John's work is based on his many years of research on the relationship between the mind and brain. In his extensive writings, John has collected, reported, and analyzed the results of his decades of research with nearly 10,000 subjects in both Eastern and Western cultures. His research has shown that the brain is an information processor that works in parallel with the body and is coordinated by consciousness. In his latest book, John challenges scientists to take seriously the idea that consciousness creates the material universe. John is also the co-founder and president of the Mind & Life Institute (MLI), an organization that promotes a peaceful, sustainable, and ethical world. He is a professor of physics and astronomy at Arizona State University, whose faculty work with undergraduate and graduate students to explore consciousness and neuroscience. MLI, together with The Institute of Noetic Sciences, has engaged over 500 consciousness researchers from the fields of science and health into consciousness research. In 1997, the Mind & Life Institute was founded on the belief that the path to a peaceful and sustainable future lies in developing a way of living based on knowledge of the world's spiritual traditions. The work of the Mind & Life Institute is guided by the vision of human oneness that exists at the core of all spiritual traditions. That vision is expressed in its guiding principle
