Q: Compiling for production or local debug We are developing a rather large application in Java (and we will be using a mix of Java, JS and HTML5). The application will be compiled on the server for production. Unfortunately, we'll also want to produce a local build so we can debug things. The build process is fairly simple, just compiling to a fat jar, but I was wondering if anyone knew of a good IDE, or project, or something else that would be ideal for developing and compiling for production.

A: Maven is good for compile-time development (during a build process) as it generates a self-consistent project that can be used to build anywhere. You can also launch the uber jar (ZIP) or generate Eclipse JAR's, etc. to provide production deploy time (or a build that will work with another technology-specific build tool). For debug, IntelliJ IDEA comes with full support to debug the final jar as it runs the server.

Q: Find the number of solutions of $x^2 - 1 \equiv 0 \pmod{2}$ and 3 Please help me find the number of solutions to the congruency $x^2 - 1 \equiv 0 \pmod{2}$ and $x^2 - 1 \equiv 0 \pmod{3}$ I noticed that $(2x+1)^2 - 4 = -9 \equiv 0 \pmod{2}$ but this is not enough. Any help would be appreciated!

A: The way to solve this is to show that the solutions have form $x = a \pmod{b}$ with a odd and b odd, as follows: For $x^2 - 1 \equiv 0 \pmod{3}$, we have $x = 3a + b$ for some odd a, b , so $x^2 = 9a^2 + 12ab + b^2$, hence $x^2 - 1 = 3(9a^2 - 4b^2) \equiv 0 \pmod{3}$. If b is odd, $3a^2$

Enjoy your first flying Pokemon adventure, but don't let the exhilaration get you lost in the game. Keeping a watchful eye on your surroundings and watching out for your vehicle in close proximity is crucial to a safe and pleasant experience. The sights and sounds of a battle zone will make you feel like you're right there in the middle of it, and you're a Pokemon trainer yourself. As a new trainer, you'll have to begin the game with just yourself as your party. Every character or object in a battle zone is completely vulnerable to a Pokemon attack, and once in battle, they have no ability to attack other Pokemon that might be nearby. Once you have battled your way up, you will be able to take one of the wild Pokemon into battle with you for an additional party member, but these Pokemon are always wild and available for the taking. They're not any less capable than the starter Pokemon, and they have the same special abilities as their evolved forms and Pokemon that you caught. Since you're out and about with nothing but your trusty team in tow, you're in the perfect place to capture some wild Pokemon that will add a little extra special flavor to your journey. The variety of environments you encounter from the great outdoors to urban area, and everything in between, will be something you're sure to appreciate. The terrain and weather in your area of Arizona will dictate the type of Pokemon you might encounter, and even the tools you'll need to get your hands on them. If you find yourself up in the mountains, the grass and rocks will probably be littered with hardy and skilled wild Pokemon that know how to find their way up to places where there's nothing but desert below. The variety of wild Pokemon you'll encounter will vary in appearance and strength
