Link Commander Crack

Possessing all the links you have saved in the past into a personal link collection enables you to surf the web easier and visit the places that you need most often instantly! Link Commander automatically imports all your favorite web pages or Web sites into a single links collection, properly organized into groups, folders, tags and sorting options based on your defined criteria. This allows you to browse the web right from the tool, regardless of all the site's location. When you are ready to visit a site, simply right-click on the link and pick the appropriate application from the context menu. In addition to that, you can set individual verification options and verification code for every visited website. Should you need to organize links in accordance with your criteria and set personal bookmark shortcuts, you'll be able to fully customize Link Commander into your link management application of choice. The software sports a convenient two-panel classic interface, localized to several languages. It is easy to get started with and configure with the help of detailed help file and an extensive link-list help section. Link Commander may also synchronize your existing link collection with personal link collection(s) stored on your personal computer. This might prove to be useful when you need to access the links in a different location. Link Commander supports password protected collections. While the entire collection can be protected, you may also choose to protect only a selected set of links or even a single folder. Who is it for? Link Commander is designed for those who need link management and organization functionality in the browser. It is also a great tool for geeks, programmers, network administrators and system administrators and any other computer user who simply wants to improve productivity and efficiency while browsing the web! Link Commander Features: - Synchronize existing and new favorites or bookmarks to a personal collection - Browse the web in a convenient two-panel classic style - Automatically import links from any Internet browsers or personal collections - Import favorites and bookmarks from an online web store - Password protection of collection or individual folders - Sync either entire collection or a single folder - Automatic collection backup and restore - Internet Explorer, Firefox and Netscape compatibility - Support for many languages I was surprised at how often users asked for a program to manage web sites that they had been saving as favorites in Internet Explorer, when it turned out that Link Commander could manage this very easily. I would have expected that a user wanting to use a browser's favorites as a list of his favorite

What's New In Link Commander?

Link Commander is a links management application for Windows with excellent support for Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Safari and Opera browsers. The application will automatically index all your favorite web sites, organize them and build a collection for your use. The collection can contain: web sites, bookmarks, favorites, mailto: links, AdWords ads, blogs, images and any other type of URL. By default, the application allows you to define a collection of one or more of your web browser favorites as its main components. The collection is indexed and stored in the program's collection database. It is possible to organize the collected links in categories and further define individual link settings. These settings include (but are not limited to): description, image, link status (active or inactive), group structure (web site, bookmark folder, link within bookmark folder, link within bookmark folder and so on) and password. You can browse the collection and set options using either classic two panel interface or the application's more suitable desktop interface. After a brief and customizable registration, your links database can be backed up and restored at any time. You can also provide duplicate backup files for comparing and reverting to previous versions. The application is completely standalone, does not require a web browser and it works on any version of Windows. It also allows to synchronize the links collection across multiple machines and computers.
