Manage cookie settings Visual improvements in FIFA 23 are complimented by a number of welcome quality-of-life improvements, delivering on EA's promises to smooth out the corners of the experience. For the most part, more interactions with the ball are done on the fly. For example, taking a corner kick involves sliding the left stick up the pitch, then either pressing the button with your right thumb or the new secondary sprint button on the touchpad to track the ball, then finally pressing the button to spin away. FIFA 23 also has new dribbling controls for technical players. The sprint button now represents the direction of the pass, allowing the player to simulate a slide and make the perfect decision where to go with the ball. There is also a brand new "Alt-drag" feature. This allows the player to use right-stick motion (held back by default) to change direction whilst holding the ball (even when pressing a button to dribble). Finally, players can now resume sprinting immediately after changing direction, while retaining momentum and sprinting speed. The game has also given an overhaul to the In-Play system. The new instant action allows you to do all manner of ball-tasks in real time, even during a loose pass. Players can press the new kick button and the ball will travel into the air, stay in the air, or perform a shot on goal. Also, passing the ball into the back of a team-mate has been simplified, with the new pass button automatically pushing the ball along a team-mate's footpath. Finally, there are controls for passing at speed. Instead of having to hold the secondary aim button to make passes during fast breaks, players can press and hold the kick button for 20 frames to force the ball on to a team-mate without the need to hold secondary aim. It is also possible to dribble at speed without holding the secondary aim button. Press the sprint button and carry the ball out of bounds for 20 frames, then kick the ball off the pitch to regain control. Online Improvements To improve the online experience, EA Sports has introduced "Talkative AI" to online FIFA matches. This is similar to Ultimate Team talkativeness, which empowers your players with "the right chat during every game, no matter the opponents, locations, or

EA SPORTS FIFA is arguably one of the biggest games in the world and the heartbeat of millions of fans around the world who enjoy the thrill of being on the pitch, sprinting past defenders, firing shots at the net, and heading the ball. Made in FIFA? From day one, the only real question we had been asked about the game was, "Can FIFA make the game again?" Now, after four years, the answer is clear. FIFA is back and better than ever. More than anything, it's the authenticity that makes FIFA so special, and it's the reason FIFA is the biggest game in the world. From the way the ball moves on the pitch to the way the players move and interact with their environment, the way the ball bounces and spins in the air, and the way the fans come to life, the most realistic football experience is all in FIFA. A World of Terrain The world of FIFA may look the same, but we've made significant improvements to the way the game handles the complexities of the environment and creates a more immersive experience. Each of the playable stadiums in FIFA 22 is unique. Stadiums can vary in shape, they can have many thousands of fans screaming at the player on the pitch, and the grounds can alter the way a match can play out. FIFA's renowned atmosphere fills these stadiums with the sound of fans rousing themselves for a match, crashing seats, filling the air with banners and noise. With stadiums all over the world in full swing, FIFA 22 brings the excitement of watching a match back to football's most atmospheric destinations with the most realistic atmosphere ever. FIFA TV expands on the amazing atmosphere in FIFA 22 with the return of the popular Player Impact Engine, and now more than ever the home of football will come alive with the roar of crowd, bustling street vendors, and lively music. Players' Voices Players' voices bring the world of FIFA to life. Previously in-game voice work only included press conferences, team and manager interviews, and game-changing moment interviews. Now you can experience all those interviews and more in-game with authentic player voices. Players can be heard laughing and talking throughout the pitch, passing one-on-one conversations, or responding to teammates' congratulations and offers to join a celebration after a goal. In the new FIFA Moments we can hear and see EA SPORTS FIFA players scream
